Increased allocation for general security water users

The NSW Office of Water (NOW) this morning announced increased allocations for general security water users in the NSW Murray and Murrumbidgee valleys.

Murray Irrigation general security (Class C) customers received an increase of eight percent, which brings the total allocation to 46 percent of water entitlements.

NOW stated that the increase was the result of recent good rainfall in the upper parts of the Murray catchment. This has also enabled supplementary access to be made available in the NSW Murray for the first time this year.

A copy of the NOW announcement is available in the Water Resource Updates section of the Murray Irrigation website: www.murrayirrigation.com.au.
